

LEO FRANK HIS FINAL JUDGE AS GOVERNOR ELECT

Present Governor Must Decide Last Appeal Unless He Himself Places Decision on Gov.-Elect Harris.

DRAFT OF EXECUTION IS SET FOR JUNE 22

As Gov. Slaton's Term Does Not Expire Until June 26, He Is Now Final Judge and Jury.

That Governor John M. Slaton will become the final judge and jury in the case of Leo M. Frank seems to be assured in the developments of yesterday.

When the R. H. Hill, who was sentenced here yesterday to be hanged Tuesday, June 22, the only person who can take the responsibility for final action from the shoulders of Governor Slaton will be Governor Slaton himself.

By delaying the execution of Frank to a date which will carry it over to the next administration, Governor Slaton can place the final executive decision of the case in the hands of his successor, Governor-elect N. H. Harris.

The only person in the world who can take the responsibility for final action from the shoulders of Governor Slaton will be Governor Slaton himself.

PROSPERITY HEAD- SAYS LUNGNER

Basic Conditions for Business in U. S. Better Now Than They Have Been for 25 Years, He Asserts.

That basic conditions for business in the United States are better now than they were at the time the war broke out last year, and that at that time they were better than they had been in twenty-five years, is the belief of John D. Lungner, vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, of New York, who is in Atlanta after having made a tour of the south observing conditions.

Mr. Lungner, one of the foremost insurance men in the country, is a pronounced optimist with respect to the business outlook.

For the foundation of his faith in present conditions he goes back to the condition which existed last August.

"At that time," says Mr. Lungner, "the situation in the country was very serious. The war had broken out, and the business conditions were very dark."

WHY FEAR DEATH? WERE LAST WORDS SPOKEN BY FROHMAN

London, May 10.—"Why fear death?" it was the last words of Charles Frohman before he went down with the Lusitania, according to Miss Rita Jolyet, an American actress, with whom he was taking calmly just before the end came.

Miss Jolyet, who was among the survivors taken to Queenstown, said she and Mrs. Frohman were standing on deck as the Lusitania heeled over to life boats, although Mr. Frohman declared the ship was doomed as they were reaching this decision that he declared he had no fear of death.

ALLIES ADVANCING AGAINST GERMAN WESTERN FRONT

Losses on Both Sides Are Heavy, But the Allied Forces Seem to Be Making Gains.

The British line, notwithstanding strenuous work, remains the same east of Ypres as it was on the night of May 3-4 when the British troops were obliged to draw back.

In the Carpathians the Germans are reported to be making preparations for a further movement against the Russians, while in the Baltic provinces the Russians have inflicted a check on the German near Mitau.

He advanced this plan as the best to pursue in solving the problem of the Lusitania.
“There isn't enough sentiment in your country now,” he continued, “to justify your president in declaring war against Germany.”
The insult as offered cannot be ignored. Fronts and intimations have proven ineffectual. This method is the only recourse remaining.

“When the war is over, America is going to demand of the Germans indemnity for their losses. Money can't really pay for the death of a mother, a father, or a brother—but it is the only way that any satisfaction can be gotten. It only pays to a small extent.”
“But suppose that at the end of the war Germany refuses to pay for the loss of American life and property. Suppose that she says she is without funds. How are you going to get this?”
By the Hague decision, Germany has broken them. By war?
“Let the United States lease these interned vessels now. Using them for carrying commerce during the war, and then holding them as insurance against default of Germany to meet the United States demands. This would be a fair retaliation for the death of the Lusitania. The crews of the ships could be made prisoners.”

Violates International Law.
Turning to page 27 of the “Field Service Pocket Book” issued by the English government he pointed to the following: “The commander of a naval force may destroy them (depots of arms, war materials, etc.) with artillery after a summons followed by a reasonable request. If all other means are impossible.”
The article was copied from the summary of international law of the Geneva convention, St. Petersburg convention and the Hague convention. The sinking happened without a warning, clearly placing it under violation of this reasonable request. If all other means are impossible.

“Some retaliation should be taken,” he said. “The seizure of the interned boats would violate no treaty, and the Germans sink them, they would be destroying their own property.”
Policy of the Germans.
“Might makes right with the Germans,” continued the official. “It has been the policy of international law. They have the idea of international law. They have proved it in their bombardment of the coast of Belgium by aircraft. They have destroyed priceless cathedrals.”
“When they blotted out American life,” he continued, “they have even gone beyond this. They outstepped the law in the killing of the defenseless enemies and made a direct appeal to the barbarians.”
“We have received no communications from the German government,” was the statement of the official. “Newspapers are at present the only source of information.”

WILL STAY IN JAIL BEFORE FORSAKING YOUNG SWEETHEART

By Jay Hays.
“I'll go to the stockade before I go on probation,” said Miss Ardle Stalaker last night at the police station, where she is a prisoner.
On last Wednesday night she left home because her parents refused to allow her to go with her sweethearts, Miss Oliver, 36 Carroll street, until Saturday noon, when she was arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct.
Miss Stalaker went before Recorder Johnson Monday morning and refused to accept freedom on probation. She remained firm, refusing to go out on probation.
Her sweetheart came to the police station to see her, but was refused admittance.
“How long I am to stay here, or what they will do to me, I don't know,” she said, “but I'll stay here until I eat this thing in the world.”
Her father is G. L. Stalaker, of 15 E. Green avenue.

ATLANTA WILL AID EMORY UNIVERSITY

By Charles B. Dabbs.
The selection of Atlanta as the site for the new Emory university was a fortunate move for Atlanta and the whole state, according to the officials of the institution which will probably rival the University of Georgia in size and prestige.
Now and Atlanta will be proud of her new university. The new institution, Atlanta has ever been a center of learning and culture, and the business men of the city are all ready to assist in the enterprise of the university and can be counted on to assist in every way.

ATLANTA NEWCOMERS GET WELCOME TODAY

People Who Came Here Recently Are the Most Popular Inhabitants Today.

By Irvin Ennis.
Are you a newcomer? Have you moved to Atlanta since January, 1914? If you are able to claim this title, then remember that tonight you will be one of the most popular citizens in Atlanta. The Rotary club is looking for you to give you the time of your life at the Auditorium-Armory Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. The occasion will be unusually interesting, and the Atlanta club guarantees that if you are not already full of the “Atlanta Spirit,” you will be by Wednesday morning.
Every newcomer whose name can possibly be secured will be honored with a formal invitation to be present. Remember, however, that the failure to receive an invitation by no means excludes you from the festivities. Come and you will be welcomed. Governor Nathan and Governor-elect Harris will be there to offer the glad hand in behalf of Georgia, while the mayor and many “old-timers” will make people feel that they were born and bred in Atlanta.

The special committee appointed by the city council to inspect the city schools will hold a meeting Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. At that time the committee will report.
The members of the committee have made a special study of the conditions as they exist at the school in their district. The condition and sanitation of the buildings has been thoroughly investigated.

Emory Student Is Impressed With Noise Made.

By Bert Rumble.
The Crackers and Lookouts broke even in a double bill, the Crackers losing 4 to 6 in eleven innings and the Lookouts the second 5 to 2 in six innings. Joe Jenkins, the peppery backstop of the Crackers, was the hitting star of the two games.
He also took $5 from Dick Jensen by hitting the star in right field, Jenkins, Rumber and Lookouts played well in the field, while the latter stole home in the last inning of the first game. Graff and Eberfeld also played a nice game for the victors.
The season when he let a ground ball second in the Crackers, was the hitting star of the two games.
The blanchers kept after Eberfeld, hitting him in the head and making the batter he played. This man is one of the best players in the league and he is still in his players what ball play.
It was fun to look at Bill Smith yesterday. He was a good player in the first game. He moved, he shot and he hit. He was one of the best players in the league. The men in the press stand were all pulling for the home team for winning. They are all real sports and men of whom Atlanta should be proud.

LEGISLATURE TO DECIDE JITNEY BUS QUESTION

Auto Owners Plan Fight on Atlanta Street Car Company.

By Vivian P. Folds.
The jitney bus operators of Atlanta are going to carry their fight before the state legislature this summer, and it is necessary to win their fight against the electric car people, the going to make an effort have the city charter changed, according to a statement made Monday morning by J. C. Pearce, of the Jitney Bus club.
“We have sixty or more jitney operators already members of the club, and everyone is determined to carry this matter to the end. The city council will be forced to rescind their recently enacted ordinance placing a prohibitive license on jitney buses,” he said.
“The Georgia Railway and Power company may have an idea that they can't fight, but they will change their opinion before we get through,” he continued. “The Jitney Bus club is gaining strength daily, and by the time the legislature meets we will have at least 100 members.”
Mr. Pearce stated to pass a law giving the voters the privilege of naming inspectors of gas and electric meters. Therefore all meters have been inspected and read by employees of the company selling the electricity and gas.
“The Georgia Railway and Power company may comprehend just how stiff a fight we are planning to make when we get this bill through the legislature,” Mr. Pearce concluded.

PLENTY OF TIMBER FOR MAYOR'S RACE

Allen, Wilkinson, Johnson, Paxon and Mason Groomed by Friends for the Office.

By Richard J. Broyles.
Ivan E. Allen, successful business man, intimated Monday that he would probably throw his hat in the ring, seeking to serve his city, if the people so desired, in the capacity of mayor.
Mell R. Wilkinson, when approached on the subject of being nominated for mayor, also showed some degree of modesty, mingled with surprise, but gave out the following statement:
“In making me president of the chamber of commerce the people have conferred upon me the highest honor in their power. There is no better office. I love and am proud of Atlanta, and my ambition is to be considered a useful citizen and as such continue to serve the city.”
F. J. Paxton showed considerable surprise when asked if he contemplated entering the race. “I have never thought of becoming a candidate,” said Paxton. “This like entering a man who has never dreamed of such a thing if he is to marry soon.”
Mrs. Argard was jokingly said: “I do not intend to become a candidate.” And he began to discuss the Emory campus, the college annual which is being published by his firm.
Charles H. Mason assumed for a moment the look of a prophet, and said: “I believe that the too far off yet. A great deal must come to pass between now and then.”

FASHIONS CHANGE; VILLAGE SPORTS PICK UP LATEST

By Joe Fagan.
A couple of Crackers were reading a north Georgia backwoods community with a new thought which has come to them. They were ambulating along Highway 10, looking in the rear of the old man's new postoffice and trying to count the stories in the Italy building when something fell from the sky—no, a package was dropped by a woman in front of them.
They heads collided vigorously in trying to pick it up.
“What was that?” the man murmured in a voice that was like the grand siphons of the Georgia coast. “It was a package,” he said, “and it was the one with the red hair.”
“None spoke the wiser one who had had Trisucit before.”
“Face powder in the box,” a voice giggled, “mysteriously muttered and disapprehended.”
“I didn't know,” a woman smiled.

SALE AT POSTOFFICE. Uncalled-For Packages to Be Sold at Auction.

By Orson Smith.
Postmaster Jones is preparing to hold the largest “Old House Sale” that has ever been pulled off in Dixie. At the local postoffice are hundreds of parcel post packages that the postmen have been unable to deliver for lack of sufficient addresses.
“Take a chance and buy. That will save you a lot of money,” said the postmaster. “A dime may buy a diamond, and a dime may draw a package of needles. From the size and shape of the packages, and a stern old man may draw the contents, and the buyer must be a true sport to bid his money at the public sale.”
Clothes, umbrellas, baby dolls, toys, furniture, powder and paint, in fact, a little of everything will probably be found in the packages. Add to this the fact that the packages are sold by the lot, and the buyer may draw a bundle containing Paris toilet articles, and a stern old man may draw the contents, and the buyer must be a true sport to bid his money at the public sale.

LADY DRIVER INJURED WHEN AUTOS COLLIDE

Mrs. G. E. Argard Claims “Jitney” Was Going at 40-Mile Clip.

By Joe Fagan.
“The car was running at least forty miles an hour,” exclaimed Mrs. G. E. Argard, when telling how another car crashed into her touring car at the corner of Boulevard and Ponce de Leon avenue yesterday morning at 11 o'clock.
Mrs. Argard was badly shaken up by the shock, and when taken to a doctor's office nearby, collapsed. After she had recovered she was calm enough to tell some of the details.
“It was a big gray machine—a jitney, I am sure—that was coming down the street at least forty miles an hour. My car was proceeding at an easy gait and the jitney bore down so fast that I could neither stop nor cross the street ahead of the other machine.”
“Yes, some one got hit, but I don't know who it was. He stopped right after the accident. I am told that the second offense of the jitney,” she continued. “It was altogether his fault, as my machine was proceeding carefully. There were no passengers in the car, and I was the only occupant of my car.”
Mrs. Argard was carried to her home, 54 Highland avenue, after the accident. At last night's session of the city council, while the accident had proven painful, it was not serious.

MAYOR ON SCHOOLS. Says New Buildings Will Be Erected in Near Future.

By Bert Rumble.
Mayor James O. Woodworth Monday took issue with certain city organizations which have been especially diligent in criticizing the city schools. The big boss of Atlanta classed statements coming from these sources as “fact-fetched or altogether untrue.”
“I do not deny that many improvements are being made in the schools,” he said. “Atlanta has a good school system, and that Atlanta doesn't should boast of it, rather than knock at every opportunity.”
“But we are not satisfied,” he said. “As more tax money becomes available, new buildings will replace the old structures and new schools will be erected.”

Mrs. McGovern Re-elected Woman's Club President

The regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club was held yesterday afternoon. Reports were made by officers and the chairman of the different committees.

Mrs. Beaumont Davison, chairman of the committee on vocational training, made a short report.

The workshop and the exhibit of the Emergency association, conducted for several months by Mrs. Davison and her committee, for temporary relief, have been closed after accomplishing a wonderful amount of good. The committee, however, is still at work. It expected that an expert in vocational training will lecture at the club in the near future.

Mrs. Irving Thomas gave an interesting report of what was being accomplished by the child welfare committee, of which she is chairman, and Mrs. Robert Wenzel, chairman of the building committee, gave a sketch of what the committee hoped to do the coming year.

The annual election of officers was a feature of the afternoon. Mrs. P. J. McGovern was unanimously re-elected president. The other officers elected for the ensuing year are:

Mrs. A. R. Colcord, vice president; Mrs. H. E. Stockbridge, recording secretary; Mrs. Albert Akers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Howard McCall, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Dan McIntyre, auditor.

Miss Isaac Hampton, president of the Atlanta Pan-Hellenic association, read an interesting paper on "Learning the Business of Life," and Miss Fannie Hinton, first vice president of the Pan-Hellenic spoke of the work being accomplished by the Pan-Hellenic.

Miss Laura Smith made an excellent talk on the importance of vocational training and guidance.

At special election of Mrs. Hamilton Douglas took on "What is Now the Law of Nations Among Civilized Peoples."

Dr. Plato Durham made a short talk and prayer.

Mrs. J. C. Hays, of Montezuma, first vice president of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs, was among the visitors present.

Social Program.

A memorable occasion was the meeting of the Women's Relief Corps, held at the residence of Mrs. C. R. Haskins, on North Boulevard, May 10.

After the regular business meeting the members and visitors were given a musical treat by Mrs. Wheldon and a delightful and more than interesting lecture by Professor Berry on the subject of "Peace."

The decorations were artistic and patriotic. Many flags (displayed) around the rooms and over the doorway were large bunting of colors of Washington and Abraham Lincoln, draped in the national colors.

Masses of roses were everywhere. American beauties and pointers gave their brightness and fragrance toward the success and pleasure of the afternoon.

"Peter Pan."

Mrs. Emmett Luncford's recent reading of "Peter Pan" at North avenue school was so well received that it is to be hoped that she will repeat her delightful interpretation. It is her ability to grasp the author's idea and to interpret his rendition with the spirit of his work that is the real test of an interpreter of the drama.

Semi-Annual Meeting.

The Atlanta City Federation of Women's Clubs will hold their semi-annual all-day meeting on May 15, beginning at 9 o'clock at the clubhouse on Baker street. An excellent program has been planned and all members are urged to attend.
